TRAVELS IN EGYPT.
The following thrilling account of the people of Abyssinia and Kordofan we find in a copy of the Westminster Review of 1845:

In 1837, Ignatius Pallme, a Bohemian by birth, undertook a journey to Kordofan, one of the most southern provinces of Egypt, on a commission of exploration from a mercantile establishment at Cairo, with a view to commercial objects. Pallme seems to have been eminently fitted for the undertaking. He had resided sufficiently long in Egypt to become familiar with the Arabic and colloquial dialect of the people, and former excursions towards the interior had made him well acquainted with native habits. Kordofan was originally peopled by nomadic tribes from the Nubian mountains, one of which, called Mount Kordofan, gave its name to the plains below it and most of the surrounding country. These were subjugated in 1779 by the King of Shennar, a country bordering upon Shoa who in turn was conquered by the Sultan of Darfour; and Meleke governed the country in the name of the Sultan of Darfour from 1781 to 1821. During this epoch the country was prosperous.

Commerce extended in all directions; caravans brought the produce from Abyssinia, the interior of Africa, and from Egypt, into the two towns of Lobeid and Bara, whence the greater part was transported into other countries. Abundance might be said to reign everywhere, and there was no want of any necessities, whilst all were wealthy, and even the women of the less opulent inhabitants wore golden rings in their noses and ears, and many even golden bracelets and silver anklets round their feet. No other metal but gold or silver was to be seen in the decoration of the women, and many female slaves even wore gold about their persons. Agriculture and cattle breeding flourished, and there were few inhabitants in the country who did not to a certain extent devote themselves to commerce. The whole population, in fact, lived free from care, and was wealthy, singing and dancing resounded from place to place; in short, this was the golden age of Kordofan.

An iron age was approaching. In 1821, Mahomet Ali undertook the conquest of Kordofan. A brigade of 4500 infantry and cavalry, attended with 800 Bedouins, and eight pieces of artillery, were sent on the expedition. The men of Kordofan defended the freedom of their country with desperate valor, and a severe battle was fought near Lobeid, the capital; but unprovided with firearms, all resistance was ultimately vain. The town was plundered and nearly wholly sacked, and the whole country surrendered, with the exception of a distant mountain tribe.

Kordofan was now annexed to Egypt, and a son-in-law of Mahomet Ali, who headed his troops, was made governor of the province. This man speedily acquired, under the title of the deftardar, the infamous reputation of a Nero. It is difficult to believe that a monster could exist in human shape capable of the acts of cruelty reported of him by former African travelers, and now confirmed; but we are told that many persons are still living whose testimony could be adduced as eye-witnesses of his deeds of horror, and themselves sufferers by his cruelty. Pallme says:

I may, perhaps, be permitted to illustrate a few traits in the character of this ruthless tyrant by narrating some of his feats; it will then become evident that this flourishing country could but sink in a very short time, as the natural consequence of his oppressive tyranny; and that a considerable period must elapse before it will be able to recover itself but slightly.

A soldier who had stolen a sheep from a peasant was caught in the very act. He not only refused to return the stolen goods, but even maltreated the peasant. Confiding in the equity of his cause, the latter thought he should more probably have justice done him by the governor than by any one else, and entered a complaint against the soldier. The deftardar listened very patiently to the story; but when the peasant had finished, the tyrant accosted him in an angry voice with the words: "And with these trifles you trouble me?" Then turning to his attendants, he ordered the peasant to be brought before the kadi; they understood immediately that he meant by the kadi, a caupon, carried the poor wretch immediately off, and bound him to the mouth of the gun, which was instantly fired.

His very servants, consisting not only of slaves, but of free Arabs and Turks, although they might be regarded as his executioners, stood in great awe of him, for he punished the slightest offence of which they might be guilty with every imaginable species of cruelty. Thus it happened that one of these servants was tempted to dip his fingers into a dish to taste it. The deftardar, unfortunately, observed the act. He demanded of the unhappy man, in an ironical tone, whether the dish was sweet or sour. The servant was naturally mute with fear. The deftardar now ordered him to be nailed by the tongue to the door, and his face to be smeared with honey, in order, as he expressed himself, to stimulate his gustatory faculties. In this position the unfortunate man had to pass two full hours. It took a long time before he recovered, and a variety of remedies were required to heal his tongue.

A seyy or groom, whose office is, according to custom in Egypt, to run before the rider, was incapable of keeping up with the deftardar from absolute fatigue, in a long and quick trot. The tyrant struck him with his whip to quicken his pace. The unfortunate man, who was, however, quite exhausted, as may be supposed, did not become more active after this remedy had been applied. For this offence the unnatural barbarian had his feet bound to the tail of a horse, and ordered the animal to be driven through the streets of Lobeid by two other seyy's. The unhappy groom would, no doubt, have met his death in this manner, were not the streets paved merely with fine sand. Thus he received many wounds, but none of which proved mortal. The horse, unaccustomed to such usage, turned suddenly round and struck at the unfortunate seyy, who, in desperation, seized the animal with all his remaining strength by the head, and to save himself, bit his upper lip. No attention was at first paid to this slight wound, but in a short time the head of the horse began to swell, and it eventually died. The seyy, who was covered with wounds, however, survived the torture.

A man gave his neighbor, in a quarrel, a box on the ears; the latter brought a complaint against him before the deftardar. "With which hand didst thou strike thy neighbor?" asked the tyrant. "With the right," answered the peasant. "Well," replied the deftardar, "that thou mayest not forget it, I shall have the flesh removed from the palm of that hand." This order was immediately executed. "Now return to thy work," said the deftardar to the sufferer, who, writhing with pain, replied: "In this state I cannot work." "What!" exclaimed the tyrant, in a rage; "thou darest to contradict me! Cut his tongue out; it is too long!" and this operation was also immediately performed, without consideration of the tortures to which he had been previously subjected.

The deftardar one day observed that some one had taken a pinch of snuff out of his box during his absence: his suspicion lighted upon his valet; he therefore upon a subsequent occasion confined a fly in his box, and leaving it in his divan, went into another room, and ordered his servant to fetch something from the chamber in which he had put down the box. The servant fell into the snare, was readily tempted to take a pinch, and the fly escaped without being observed. In a short time the deftardar returned to the room, found that the fly had escaped from its confinement, and immediately asked the valet, "Who had opened the box?" "I, sir," he confidently replied; "I took a pinch." This liberty he paid with his life: the ruffian had him flogged to death.

A negro bought milk of a woman for five paras, drank it, but forgot the payment. The woman complained to the deftardar, who happened to be in the neighborhood. "Well," said he, "I will immediately investigate the affair," and ordered the offending negro to be instantly brought before him. When he appeared, he asked him if he had bought milk of that woman and not paid for it? The negro, in fear, denied it. The barbarian immediately ordered the abdomen of the negro to be cut open, to see whether his stomach contained the milk. It was, indeed, found; whereupon he quietly said to the woman, "Thou art right; take these five paras, and now go thy ways."

In his garden the deftardar had a den in which he kept a lion: the animal became gradually so tame that he ran about at liberty in the grounds, and followed his master like a dog. Of this tame lion the tyrant made use to frighten the people who came before him; a species of wanton sport in which he took the greatest pleasure. If it so happened that no stranger came to visit him during the hour in which he engaged himself in his garden, he ordered his attendants to bring any person they might meet on the highways to him. The invitation was sufficient in itself to frighten any one to death; but when an unfortunate man in the greatest trepidation entered the garden, and in absolute fear of his life creeping along the earth, approached the deftardar, he set the lion at him, and the poor fellow, of course, fell senseless to the ground at the sight of the wild beast. This was now his greatest delight; for, although the animal did no harm, it was sufficient to frighten the most courageous man to be brought into close contact with a rampant lion.

Before this lion was quite domesticated, and whilst it was yet kept in confinement, one of the gardener's assistants was guilty of some mistake, of which the superintendant complained to the deftardar. In no case didatory in passing judgment, he ordered the accused, without going into details, or listening even to the full explanation of the case, to be cast into the lion's den. This order was immediately complied with; the beast, however, treated the poor condemned wretch like a second Daniel: it not only did him no harm, but, to the astonishment of all beholders, licked at his hands. The gardener's assistant was not the animal's attendant, but he had occasionally thrown some of his bread into the den in passing. The noble animal had not forgotten this kindness, and spared his benefactor's life. The deftardar on hearing this was by no means pleased; but blood-thirsty as ever, and without feeling the slightest appreciation for this act of generosity, ordered the lion to be kept fasting during the whole of the day, and the delinquent to remain in confinement, thinking, in the anger of ungratified rage to force the beast to become the executioner of its benefactor. But even hunger could not overcome the magnanimity of the royal animal, and the poor gardener remained the whole day unhurt in the den with the lion. In the evening he was liberated, but the unfortunate man did not long escape the vengeance of the tyrant, who, meeting him one day in the garden, where he had brushed up a heap of leaves, accosted him with, "Dog, thou art so bad that a lion will not eat thee;" but now thou hast made thine own grave." Hereupon he commanded him to carry the dry leaves to an oven, and then to creep in himself. When this order was executed, the tyrant had the leaves lighted, and the poor wretch expired under the most horrid tortures.

A fellah (peasant) owed the government forty maaile (eightpence of English money) the sheikh of his village had his last ox seized, the fellah declaring himself incapable of paying. The beast was slaughtered and divided into forty parts; the butcher received the head and skin for his trouble, and the remaining forty parts were sold at one maaile each, to the inhabitants of the village promiscuously. The meat as may be supposed, was quickly sold at this low price. The poor peasant now appeared with a complaint before the deftardar, assuring him that the ox was worth more than forty maaile. The deftardar proceeded with all speed to the village, to investigate the matter on the spot. Having convinced himself of the truth, he ordered the sheikh, the butcher, and all those persons who had bought a portion of the confiscated ox, to be called together, and reproached the sheikh, in presence of all, for his unlawful conduct. The butcher now received the order to slaughter the sheikh, and divide his body into forty parts. Every former purchaser was obliged to buy a part at the price of one maaile, and to carry the flesh home with him. The money was handed over to the fellah as an indemnification for the ox which had been taken from him.

At the feast of the Baeram, all the servants and seyy's, eighteen in number, went before the deftardar to offer their congratulations, according to custom, and begged at the same time for a pair of new shoes. "You shall have them," said he. He now had the farrier called, and commanded him to make eighteen pairs of horse-shoes to fit the feet of his servants: these were ready on the next day, whereupon he ordered two shoes to be nailed to the soles of the feet of each of the eighteen servants, without mercy. Nine of them died in a short time of mortification; he then had the survivors unshod, and consigned them to the care of a medical man.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT—STOMACH AND KIDNEYS.—Between these two organs there exists a close and intimate relation, which is demonstrated by the wasting which occurs in all diseases afflicting the kidneys. The disordered stomach is often the first index of renal irregularities. Holloway's remedies used at that juncture would cut short many a serious and fatal attack. They act with wonderful efficacy on every organ of secretion, but especially do they regulate the stomach, liver, and kidneys in restoring their healthy functions, and casting out any obstructions or impurities. It is necessary for the Ointment to be well rubbed over the affected parts twice daily, when it is absorbed, and much augment the purifying and salutary influence of the Pills.

The Public Accounts.

The Land Department, and the fees taken in our Courts, are to undergo a searching scrutiny before Committees appointed by the Assembly. It is high time that the public should know how business is managed in the first, and why moderate fees are not taken in the second. If proper attention be given to both these subjects, we have little doubt but a very great deal of good will be done. There is, however, another subject that invites the attention of the Assembly; and we do not know but that it requires ventilation even more than the two departments named. What we refer to is the debtor and creditor accounts of the Colony, and how the cash is received, kept, and paid out.

We take it that at every session of the Legislature, the entire accounts of the Colony should be laid before the Assembly in all their details, and that that body should in the most public way pass upon them; and besides which they should be published for the information of every one. Nothing is so well calculated to promote the healthy management of public affairs as ventilating fully the sums received in the different departments, and the amounts disbursed, and to whom. A great many persons are under the erroneous impression that public business can be done on some principle differing essentially from the ordinary modes of doing private business. Such is a very great error. The correct merchant examines into every item from the stock on hand to the stock purchased, into the debits and credits, the moneys received, and the moneys disbursed. Commercial companies do the same thing; but they lay before their stockholders at stated periods the exact state of their affairs, not only for their satisfaction, but because the shareholders have a right to know how their capital has been invested, and whether a profit or a loss has been made. We regard the Colony in the light of a body corporate. The executive, judiciary, and legislature bear a similar relation to the people, as the president, secretary, treasurer, and board of directors do to the shareholders of a commercial company. In the latter case it is the bounden duty of the officers-bearers to make the whole business for the quarter, six months, or year, known to the shareholders. Viewing, then, the people in the light of shareholders in the body corporate, we fully expect a periodical examination of our affairs. We regard it as the bounden duty of the Assembly, as directors, to examine the debtor and creditor accounts of the Colony once every year, and see that such accounts are laid in detail before the people. If the executive fails to do so, substitute an executive who will.

The reasons are obvious why an annual examination should be made. It makes those in authority sensible that they are responsible for the department committed to their charge; and responsible to those who pay their salaries—the people. Examination and publication of accounts enables the taxpayers to see how their money has been spent, whether properly or improperly; whether corruption exists or not; whether they have been fleeced to support a pampered few, or whether government has managed affairs well. In fact, it is the very best check a people can have on their rulers, to call upon them periodically to give an account of their stewardship. It shows who are the servants and who the masters; makes the government purer, and the people more contented; promotes retrenchment, and prevents extravagance.

In respect to the mode of receiving, keeping, and paying out public money, it is apparent that revision is necessary in order that such checks may be adopted as would effectually guard the public against loss. The Treasurer is, theoretically, the party to whom all moneys are directly paid. But we will find that, with the exception of the Land Department, it is next to impossible to make the Treasurer the sole collector of revenue. We have seven departments in which revenue is collected, the Land Department, Treasury, Harbourmaster's Office, Supreme and Inferior Courts, Police Office, Post Office, Sheriff's Office, and Registrar of Deeds' Office. The only check that could be adopted against the six last departments, besides auditing their accounts, would be to make them pay all moneys over to the Treasurer every month, or every week. As regards the Land Department, there appears no real necessity why a dime should be paid into that office. No public inconvenience would result from paying instalments to the Treasurer; but a better system of checks in both departments would be established by adopting such a usage. Besides, we are well satisfied that a thorough system of checks is desirable, not only to guard against temptation, but to insure greater regularity in the transaction and management of public business.

So far as the collection of revenue in the minor departments is concerned, the paying over weekly would insure the safe keeping of the funds. But the question would arise what checks would be necessary against the Treasurer? We take it for granted that his accounts ought to be thoroughly audited from time to time, and not merely by an auditing clerk, but by a Board of Revenue Auditors composed of independent citizens. Besides, he should pay out all monies. It should not be left as it is, or has been in some instances, for departments to pay themselves. The safe-keeping, however, of the money is the main question. On that point we do not see a more desirable mode than that adopted by Canada and Australia of depositing their funds in some well-known bank. It certainly is a far safer mode of keeping money than allowing some four or five offices to lodge it in their safes. Besides, we our cash deposited in a bank, the Treasurer would cheque on the bank, and the bank would be a check on the Treasurer.

We certainly hope that before the present session of the Legislature closes that the matter to which we have alluded, will come up for consideration; and that such a system of checks and balances, of examination and publication, will be adopted as will insure the entire confidence of the public in the different departments, and tend generally to promote the interests of the country.

Monday Morning, July 8, 1861.

FROM BRITISH COLUMBIA.

The steamer Otter arrived from New Westminster at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, bringing 25 passengers and about $45,000 in gold dust.

Salutes were fired at sunrise, noon and sunset on the Fourth at Yale, and most of the business houses were closed. In the afternoon horse races over the course on Douglas street were indulged in.

A secession flag was raised over the saw-mill opposite Yale. Its appearance gave rise to considerable talk; but no attempt was made to haul it down. On the 5th the traitorous emblem still waved over the mill.

The body of a man was picked up at Hope on the 4th. One leg was gone, the skull fractured, and several teeth knocked out. The body was very much decomposed and no doubt exists but that it was the remains of one of the unfortunate victims by the explosion of the steamer Yale on the 15th of April last. It was supposed first to be the body of the lamented Jamieson; but upon a close examination several false teeth were observed. As it is well known that Capt. Jamieson wore no false teeth, it was decided that it could not be his. The sad condition of the remains precluded identification, and even the remnants of clothing which still remained were so decayed as to be unrecognizable. An inquest was held over the remains by Justice O'Reilly, and a verdict of "found drowned" returned. The body was interred on the same day in the Hope graveyard.

The Hope people were not a whit behind their Yale friends in the celebration of the Fourth of July. A general holiday was proclaimed by the inhabitants, and canoes, horse and foot races took place; considerable sums of money changed hands on the results.

At New Westminster and Port Douglas the day was also observed in an enthusiastic and creditable manner.

The Otter brought to this city six sacks of silver ore from the new silver lead a few miles back from Douglas. The ore is said to be rich. The lead is situated near the trail, and is called the Lillooet mine. The work at the Harrison Lake mines is progressing.

Dewdney's wagon road to Similkameen is completed to Beaver Lake, fifteen miles from Hope. Beaver Lake is described as one of the most beautiful sheets of water in the whole of British Columbia. A neat hotel has been erected on its banks, and the vicinity is destined at no distant day to become a popular place of resort.

Mosquitoes are very troublesome at the mouth of Harrison River. The crew of the Flying Dutchman, connecting with the Col. Moody at Harrison River, find it impossible to remain at the mouth of that stream on account of those pests; but receive the freight three miles up. At New Westminster and at other parts of the river the mosquitoes are not so annoying.

Sprague, the burglar, attempted to break jail at New Westminster on Friday night. His plans were fortunately discovered in time and frustrated by the jailor. About a week ago the same individual laid a plan whereby himself and a fellow prisoner were to pretend to disagree on some subject; Sprague was to seize an axe and threaten his antagonist with it, and the jailor, attracted to the spot by the noise, would naturally rush up to prevent injury being done, when Mr. Sprague was to knock him on the head, take the keys from his body, and walk leisurely off. Another convict "blew" on the desperadoes, however, and they have been since more closely watched than ever.

Last week the police made a descent on a Chinese gambling house at Yale, and arrested the inmates; two of the gamblers were fined $50 each, and several others, $25 each.

Fifteen pack-trains, comprising nearly 350 animals, left Lytton City for Cariboo, in the ten days ending on the 26th ult.

Hardly a miner is at work between Yale and Lytton City, except on Yankee Flat, where a few rich-paying claims are being sluiced. The Cariboo fever has depopulated nearly every mining camp on the lower river.

The accounts from Cariboo are meagre. The Express had not arrived at Hope, but was expected every day.

From Similkameen, we learn that Graytown and other mining camps are deserted by their inhabitants, who have been driven away by the mosquitoes.

The Hudson Bay Company's brigade of animals arrived at Hope on the morning of the 5th, bringing a large and valuable lot of furs. The animals numbered nearly 400, and were mostly from the New Caledonian stations.

The following are from the British Columbia of the 4th inst.

Although we have no startling announcement to make, yet the news from our mining districts is of the most encouraging and satisfactory character. Several parties had, at latest advices, reached Lillooet and Lytton from the Cariboo country, all agreeing as to the richness of the mines; and although the season is unusually late in that region, yet those who are on the ground waiting for the disappearance of the snow and abatement of the water, appear to entertain the most sanguine expectations as to the final result.

In many places where prospecting has been prosecuted under the snow, the results have been almost fabulous, it being no uncommon thing to find from $3 to $10 the pan! Although provisions are high, yet they are by no means so scarce as we were led to suppose by late reports; and few, if any, have left that country from this cause. Pack trains are kept in constant employment, and packers are doubtless reaping a rich harvest. The supply of pack animals between Yale and Lillooet and thence to Cariboo falls far short of the demand, so that Indians have to be resorted to as a substitute.

Bullock teams are coming into general use on the first portage from Douglas. Messrs. Wright & Nelson have now four of these teams on the route, and they are found to answer the purpose well.

FROM THE NORTHWEST COAST AND BUTE INLET.

Mr. Herman Shipser, of the firm of D. & H. Shipser, arrived yesterday morning on the schooner Nonpareil, from a trading voyage to the Northwest coast of British Columbia and Bute Inlet. Mr. Shipser has been away three months, and has sailed as far North as the Russian Possessions. He reports the Indians quiet and favorably disposed towards traders. Several other schooners were engaged in trading on the coast. Furs are not numerous. On the 28th of April the Nonpareil entered Bute Inlet and ascended it to its head. They found the country very uninviting in its appearance, and during their stay five feet of snow fell. The mountains are high, and in many instances descend to the water's edge. The tide, in ebbing or flowing in the Inlet, runs at the rate of from eight to ten knots, and navigation is rendered not only disagreeable, but is also at times unsafe, from a chop-sea which continually prevails. At the head of the Inlet there is quite a large flat, in front of which good anchorage and fine shelter from the winds are to be had. This flat has been staked out by the Hudson Bay Company, or their agents, in anticipation of the founding of a town there. It is the only good town-site on the Inlet, and is the only really safe place for vessels. Near the entrance to the Inlet are a few Indian huts, and at its head there are also a few lodges. The Indians inhabiting the shores of the Inlet are a dirty, miserable-looking race of beings and go about nearly naked, their only clothing being strips of sea-weed round about their loins. In general appearance and habits, our informant pronounces them as inferior to the Digger Indians of California, who are proverbial for their filthy habits.

With regard to the route to the interior, Mr. Shipser says he found only one Indian (a Bella-Coola) who was able to speak Chinook, and was told by him that the Buteites could travel—and often did so—from the coast to Alexandria and back in fourteen days. The route, he said, for some distance was over precipitous mountains, on the sides of which it was an extremely difficult matter to maintain a footing. Once over the mountains, the country was level and easily travelable. While Mr. Shipser was at the head of the Inlet, an Indian, in endeavoring to ascend one of the mountains, missed his footing and was dashed to pieces on rocks many feet below. Mountain sheep are very numerous, and are the only game encountered near the coast in that vicinity. Several small creeks make into the Inlet, but they principally head in the mountains, and are fed by the melting snow. The Nonpareil saw or heard nothing of the exploring schooner Antelope.

A CHOICE AT LAST.—On Saturday evening last the Rifle Corps again met to elect a Lieutenant-Colonel. In the absence of Mr. Sprout, D. B. Ring, Esq., was called to preside, and Chas. W. Wallace, Esq., acted as Secretary. Some preliminary remarks were made by several gentlemen, and a motion introduced to merely elect the Lieutenant-Colonel for three months. The motion was lost, however, and the balloting proceeded. The result of the first ballot was: Sprout, 60; Gordon, 50; Foster, 19; necessary to a choice, 65. Capt. Gordon then addressed the meeting, announced that he was no longer a candidate, and requested his friends to support Major Foster. A second ballot was then had, and the vote stood: Foster, 63; Sprout, 59. Major Foster was declared the successful candidate amid deafening applause, and on motion of Mr. De Cosmos the vote was made unanimous. Remarks were made by Messrs. Foster and Gordon; votes of thanks were tendered the Chairman and Secretary of the meeting, and the Corps adjourned with vociferous cheers and "tigers" for Major Foster, Capt. Gordon, and Mr. Sprout. The good feeling and unanimity manifested by all present was exceedingly gratifying.

A SUPPOSED BURGLAR.—Henry Johnson, said to hail from Whatcom, was arrested on Saturday night, at 12 o'clock, by specials McGee and Phillips, on suspicion of being a burglar. He has been noticed for several nights lately prowling about the streets, and the proprietors of the New England Bakery charge that about three o'clock on Saturday morning last he entered their premises and stole a small sum of money from the pantaloons pocket of a lodger. He was afterwards seen to try the back door of Braverman & Lewin's store. He will be examined by Mr. Pemberton this morning, when his true character will doubtless be discovered.

GROCERIES.—An auction of choice groceries will be held at 11 o'clock this morning by J. A. McCrea.

A PRIZE FIGHT.—A fight for $25 a side, to settle a long existing dispute between a couple of mechanics of this city, came off on Saturday evening at the Springs. Three rounds were fought when one of the principals failed to come to time, and the other was declared the winner and the stakes handed over to him. The fight was conducted in strict accordance with the latest rules of the ring, and no great damage was inflicted by either of the fighters.

VENTURESOME TRADERS.—Indians recently from the North report that a trading schooner from this place has ventured to ascend the coast to the Russian Territory, and was engaged in trading with Indians. Messengers were sent to Sitka, and a Russian steamer was expected down every day to seize the schooner and arrest the venturesome traders.

INDIAN LIQUOR.—The schooner Saucy Lass, that left here last week on a trading voyage to British Columbia, carried away nearly a full cargo of tangle-leg which will sold to the natives on the coast.

DEPARTURES.—The barkentine W. B. Scranton and the bark N. S. Perkins were towed outside the harbor yesterday by the steamer Caledonia. They are bound to the Sound for cargoes of lumber.

At 11 o'clock this morning, P. M. Baeus will sell the stock, fixtures and good will of the London and Paris Restaurant, Government street.

Important news may be expected by the Eliza Anderson to-morrow morning.

The Big Trees.

The editor of the San Andreas Independent has just paid his first visit of the sea on to the tall cedars of Calaveras. As we never tire of reading descriptions of these giants and as the "Grove is going to be a place of popular summer resort, we will repeat what the editor says of them:

"We remained two full days at the Grove, and during that time, the better to comprehend the full size of the Mammoth Trees, we employed our time (assisted by Mr. Bee, a visitor all the way from New Jersey) in taking the measures of the chief dignitaries of the forest. We found several of them to be over 325 feet in high and over 30 feet in diameter. In this particular spot we found, also, that the sugar pines and the yellow pines attain a growth of extraordinary size. Near the "Mother of the Forest,"—about 80 feet to the north-west—stands one which is 200 feet high and 8½ feet in diameter. Several others which we measured were 9 feet in diameter, and one, in the field to the south of the hotel about 200 yards, was 11 feet in diameter. When in perfect health it must have been 300 feet high, but now its tip is broken off. By the side of their elder gigantic brothers, these prodigious sugar-pines appear as mere plumes—Gullivers in Brobdignag. A nice calculation will show that fourteen such trees as the one 8½ feet in diameter standing near the "Mother of the Forest," would not quite make up the bulk of the "Mother," and twenty would not equal "Hercules." Astonishing as this statement may seem, it is nevertheless true. We measured the "Miner's Cabin," one of the largest sized trees, which was blown down by the terrible storm of last November. From its roots to the top—which latter has not been removed, we found it to be 310 feet. In the course of its fall this tree encountered two pines about 3 feet in diameter each, both of which were literally crushed to atoms. At about 180 feet from its roots, and where its diameter is from 10 to 12 feet, the "Miner's Cabin" broke into several pieces, and also split for 40 or 50 feet, showing the various colors and peculiar growth of the wood in a way no where else to be seen. The annual growths are marked very small—twenty to an inch. The sap is not more than two inches thick. 180 feet from the roots, and at the broken ends resembles red sandstone. A remarkable fact about these trees is the pertinacity with which they cling to life. We noticed a stump of a small one which had been cut down by some unknown hand, for several years, and which has started on a new growth from the top of the old stump, and all around under the bark. On the higher limbs of the "Mother of the Forest," which has been stripped of her bark 1½ feet upward, for the last seven years, are still growing green and blooming branches."

William J. Walker, of Boston, who is one of the most opulent surgeons in the country, has given property estimated to be worth $90,000, to establish professorships in mathematics in three of the colleges of Massachusetts. These institutions are William's, A. Herst and Tufts Colleges, each of which will receive $30,000 for the purpose above named. Dr. Walker is a graduate of Harvard College, and a Unitarian.

A company from Chillicothe, Ohio, that could not be mustered into service, has offered the government a bonus of $4,500 for the privilege of serving through the war.

FOSTER & COLEMAN, (SUCCESSORS to J. J. HALEY, Proprietors.) Having purchased the interest of Mr. Haley in this well known Hotel, the subscribers beg to say to the old patrons of the house and the public generally, that they have made many alterations and improvements, and remodeled and renovated the house throughout in the most thorough manner, and have added an elegant private hall for the entrance of ladies, and are determined that in the future the house shall possess all the requisites of a FIRST CLASS Hotel in every particular.

Our Mr. Foster has been bookkeeper of the house for the past two years, and Mr. Foster has been consulted by the most experienced and careful men of the past eight years as purser, and cheerfully offers his services to families and others to procuring steamer passage in advance of their arrival here.

DRUGS & MEDICINES.
THE WORLD'S FRIEND!
Holloway's Ointment.
A Cure for Piles and Fistulas.
Induration of sensitive parts, piles, fistulas, and such like painful diseases may be presently relieved, and ultimately cured, by the proper and diligent use of this cooling and healing Ointment, whose action is such as to draw out the morbid matter, and dissolve the piles; ere many days have elapsed the anxious patient will experience a wonderful degree of ease from this treatment. They are equally suitable to both sexes, and all ages.

Coughs, Colds, and Asthma.
These complaints of the chest come on with alarming suddenness. The Ointment should be assiduously be rubbed at least twice a day on the chest and between the shoulders, when the violence of all symptoms will gradually give way, the breathing become longer, and the oppression less. No medicines are more efficient in chest complaints, however acute, and used with equal safety in such cases. Holloway's Pills and Ointment are accompanied by very clear and simple directions for using them.

A Man who refused to have his Leg off.
"From the Kilrush Advertiser, June 2nd, 1860."
BENJAMIN COX, Esquire, Magistrate, said in the Board Room at Kilrush, that he knew a man who had been in the Infirmary and was actually turned out as incurable, on his way home to Kilrush, he purchased an ounce of Holloway's Pills and Ointment.
For as he said, it could not be worse with him. This man, said Mr. Cox, became by their use as sound and as healthy as any man in the room. These celebrated Pills and Ointment will cure any wound, sore, or ulcer, however long standing, if properly used according to the printed directions.

Gout and Rheumatism.
The essence of these diseases lie in the blood, which has, floating through each vessel, the pain-giving poison, which irritates and inflames every tissue it comes in contact with, and produces the hot, swollen, elastic enlargement about the joints so characteristic of gouty diseases. The philosophy of cure consists in removing this morbidity in the blood, which is rapidly purified by the use of the Pills. The Ointment, when rubbed upon the skin, penetrates the system through the pores, acts in unison with the Pills, and soon effects a cure.

Dropsy, Swollen Legs or Ankles.
The various kinds of dropsies, whether windy or watery, arise from some obstruction to the free circulation of the blood vessels or lymphatics, or depend on the inflamed state of some secreting surface.
Holloway's remedies, of which the efficacy cannot be exaggerated, act directly upon the blood, the absorb-ents and secretions, with a powerful but not drowing power, to remove the morbid matter, and restore the proper flow of blood to every organ, and purify it likewise—they filter out everything that is morbid or injurious—they thoroughly regenerate every function, yet potent as they are for good, they are powerless for evil. They do not contain mercury or any noxious substance. They act safely and certainly.

Bad Legs, Bad Breasts, and Old Ulcers.
This invaluable Ointment was never known to fail in the cure of any wound, any sore, or any ulcer, as can be proved by innumerable testimonials from persons who had been discharged from Hospitals as incurable, and yet by perseverance they have been made as sound as when they first came under treatment, by this incomparable Ointment. For pimples, blotches, scald heads, and scorbutic humours, it is equally efficacious.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases:

Bad Legs	Chilblains	Fistulas	Sore-throats
Bad Breasts	Chapped Hands	Gout	Skin-diseases
Burns	Corns (Soft)	Gunshot Wounds	Scurvy
Cancers	Contracted Limbs	Lumbago	Soreheads
Blistered Feet	Elephantiasis	Piles	Tumours
Scalds	Scalds	Rheuma-	Ulcers
		tism	Yaws
			Sore Nipples

There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.
N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each Pot. n18

Greeley's Bourbon Bitters.
THE POPULARITY OF THESE BITters is justly due to the purity of the materials of which they are prepared, and the delicate combination of simple alteratives and tonics so well calculated to act upon every part of the digestive organs, and through them to reach and cure all complaints arising from a diseased condition of the Stomach and Bowels.

GREELEY'S BOURBON WHISKY BITTERS
are highly nourishing and fattening, and as a Tonic
for old people, delicate ladies, consumptive patients, and all weakly persons, they cannot be surpassed. In all cases of Weakness or Debility, they will give immediate relief, and impart a strong, healthy tone to the system. For the cure of the dyspepsia, Indigestion, Nervous Diseases, Liver Complaints, Weakness or Debility, Flatulency and Nausea, and all complaints consequent upon a disordered state of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, they are not equalled. As an agreeable stomachic, they are much admired; they sharpen the appetite, brighten the intellect, and infuse new life and vigor. No one who uses these Bitters can be subject to an attack of Fever and Ague or Diarrhoea.
Put up in Quart Bottles, in cases of one and two dozen, and for sale by Druggists, Grocers and Liquor Merchants everywhere.

Old Sachem Bitters
Wigwam Tonic

THESE UNEQUALLED BITTERS
and TONIC are now meeting with unparalleled sales, and favor with consumers. In all cases of DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, LOSS OF APPETITE, or any irregularity of the stomach, they will be found an efficient remedy, as well as a most wholesome and agreeable Tonic.

As a preventive of Chills and Fever, they have no equal, and have with thousands become an indispensable family medicine, being given to all, and free from any deleterious substance, can be taken by all,
young and old, male and female, with benefit.
